CUT SCHOOL LEVY

State University Professor
Points Out Value of Education to Everyone.

FAIRMONT, Nov. 6.—Friday was another busy day around Farmington High School when the activities of Education Week were brought to a close by a West Virginia Day program in which the address of Dr. J. N. Deahl of West Virginia University was the feature. Doctor Deahl arrived here Friday morning from Man-nington and spent a few hours visiting the classes of the high school. In the afternoon all classes were dismissed, and the students attended the address in a body. The program was opened by a selection by the high school orchestra. The school then sang "America," after which the poem "West Virginia," by Edmund Elsey of Parkersburg, W. Va., was read by Miss Daisy Criswell. The school also sang "West Virginia Hills," after which Doctor Deahl was introduced by Principal H. M. Williamson of the high school.

The title of Doctor Deahl's address was "What Our Public Schools Stand For." He began by expressing his disappointment that there were so few of the school patrons in attendance. He made a plea for the older folks of the community to come out to more school functions and to get the viewpoints of the children, so as to catch some of their young enthusiasm. Then launching into the subject of his talk, he pictured the school as a tremendous force for good in the community as the best and most democratic institution in the world, the best for all people. It is the only institution of consequence in the world which has never tried to usurp authority, he said. Then coming back to the viewpoints of the students, he told how they would not get much out of the school unless they put much into it, and that only by developing a sense of responsibility can they put their backs into their work.

"Beware of the idiots and fools who want to cut down the school budgets when they want to economize for the state," warned Doctor Deahl. "Petty politicians, trying to cut down the taxes of the state, choose the path of least resistance and cut down school appropriations in order to gain re-election. Such a process is nothing short of criminal."

"The two bank accounts the people have to draw upon are natural resources and brain power. We have wasted our natural resources in this state until now we are paying for it. Let us not waste our brain power. Brain power, like natural resources cannot be increased only developed. Let us build, not only for ourselves, but let us conserve our bank accounts for the benefit of the boys and girls to come."

After Doctor Deahl's address, the song, "Hail West Virginia" was sung by the students. Doctor Deahl then made a few more remarks about the blot on West Virginia's reputation among the other states. He told of his experience in both Harvard and Columbia, where professors in those schools held West Virginia up as a horrible example of a thing which should not be allowed to exist in a civilized country, and of the school teacher from the East whose mother told her she was "taking her life in her hands" to come to West Virginia to teach. "The only way to overcome these false conceptions about our state is by education. The events which have put the state before the public in such unfavorable light could have all been avoided had the people been educated into a proper conception of right and wrong," he declared.

The meeting adjourned after another selection by the orchestra. Photoplay Big Success. The moving picture show of the Farmington High School last Friday night was the greatest success of the year, at least so far as the picture was concerned. The crowd was not the greatest of the year, but Dorothy Clark was easily the best picture seen here for some time. And not only was it a good picture, but the "spooky" part of it fitted in well with the Halloween season just ended. The rest of the program was interesting also. A series of slides picturing some of the high lights of the World War was shown, as was the third episode of the serial "Go Get 'Em Hutch."

The picture for this week will be "Riders of the Dawn," a thrilling drama of the West, taken from Zane Grey's novel, "The Desert of Wheat." Zane Grey's pictures are always popular in Farmington, and a good crowd is Farmington Gets Touchdown.—Farmington High School's football players Saturday journeyed to far off Smithfield to play ball. Having never heard of the Smithfield High School football team, they figured they were about due to win a game. The reason they had never heard of the Smithfield team, however, was not that it was a team to be despised, but rather that Smithfield is so far from here that news of its hefty football team had never traveled this far over the West Virginia hills. So when the local team showed up on the Smithfield gridiron for the game they were rather surprised when they saw some real "beef" in front of them. But not dismayed they went into the game, and although they did not win, they accomplished the hitherto unknown, and scored a touchdown for themselves. The final count for Smithfield was 31. Farmington scored seven points, the first seven points ever made by Farmington High School in the football game. Smithfield was a big team and powerful, and for Farmington to have made its first score against them is no small feat in the local bonnet. Delbert Kerns is the hero, and it is considered fitting that he should have been, for in all the games Farmington has played this fall, his playing has been the most prominent.

Miss Scanlon Speaks. Saturday night, Farmington was honored by the presence of Miss Nellie Scanlon, the well-known lecturer from New Zealand, who gave an interesting and instructive lecture about her native land in the high school auditorium. Miss Scanlon, who came here under the auspices of the Woman's Club, was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson of Fairmont, district president of the Woman's Clubs. Mrs. Henry Morgan, president of the club here, introduced Mrs. Scanlon, who, in turn, introduced Miss Scanlon, who entertained the audience for an hour, first by a description of her native land, its people, industries and general characteristics, and then by a series of slides picturing New Zealand.

Miss Scanlon came to this country primarily to attend the Limitation of Armaments Conference in Washington almost a year ago, and since then has been lecturing in this country, and at the same time studying the political and social institutions so as to be able to take whatever she finds good in them back to her own country.

After the lecture, in the sewing room of the high school, Mrs. A. M. Foote and Mrs. S. L. McGee were hostesses to Miss Scanlon. Mrs. Wilson and the Woman's Club of Farmington. The room was tastefully decorated in keeping with the Halloween season. During this time, the guests were able to meet and talk with Miss Scanlon personally.

Local Items. There will be no school in Farmington Tuesday, that day being national election day.

The Ladies' Aid of the First M. E. Church will give a chicken supper in the basement of the church Tuesday evening.

Principal H. M. Williamson of the high school and Mrs. Williamson went to Waynesburg, Pa., Friday to witness the Waynesburg-Bethany football game.

A. M. Foote of Morgantown, W. Va., was a week-end visitor in Farmington.

Harold Fleming, a student in West Virginia University, returned to Farmington to spend the week-end at his home.

ALDERMAN'S HOME
DAMAGED BY BOMB

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—A bomb explosion early today jolted Alderman William R. O'Toole and his family from bed and damaged their residence in West Garfield boulevard. O'Toole said he was unable to find a reason for the bomb being exploded at his home. The explosion jarred the family from their sleep and two of the four children suffered severe fright. The door and entrance to the house and windows panes were shattered. A wire was found hanging from a mail box near the front door, and the police believe the bomb was suspended by the wire.

BURNS TO DEATH.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 6.—Planned beneath a burning automobile, W. H. Smith of Zanesville fired a revolver and sounded the horn near his hands in an effort to attract attention. He was burned to death before anyone could extricate him. The automobile skidded and turned turtle into a ditch.

DIES AT BURTON

A message received here today announced the death of Mrs. Charles Booth of Burton, which occurred at 6:45 o'clock today. Mrs. Booth was a sister of Mrs. Jennie Hupp of this city.

SIX SENATORS IN MIDDLE WEST OUT
FOR RE-ELECTION

Strenuous Efforts to Upset
G. O. P. in Republican Strongholds Made.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Senatorial campaigns in nine states of the Middle West end today as the issues in tomorrow's off-year election go to the people.

The windup finds six United States senators from central states seeking re-election. They are:

Republicans—Townsend (Michigan), Kellogg (Minnesota), LaFollette (Wisconsin).

Democrats—Hitchcock (Nebraska), Reed (Missouri), Pomerene (Ohio).

The primary defeats of Senator New (Indiana) and McCumber (North Dakota) left the Republican party in those states with new aspirants to the Senate. Former Senator Beveridge, Progressive leader in the days of Bull Moose activities, is the standard-bearer of Indiana Republicans in his campaign to go back to the Upper Branch of Congress.

Lynn J. Frazier, former Non-Partisan League governor of North Dakota, bears the Republican label in that state for the McCumber seat.

In Iowa, where Smith W. Brookhart is the Republican nominee for the senatorial seat which Senator Keyon exchanged for the ermine of a federal judge, the closing campaign is a more or less organized Republican revolt against the Brookhart candidacy. A somewhat similar condition prevails in North Dakota, where there is considerable Republican antipathy in Frazier.

The Harding administration is the big issue in Ohio, the President's home state, with prohibition also a question as the state votes on a beer and wine referendum.

Congressman Fessenden, champion of the Harding forces as the Republican nominee, is at the end of one of the most intense campaigns in the country on party issues in his contest with Senator Pomerene.

The Nebraska contest between Senator Hitchcock and R. B. Howell is largely one of party principals.

Two women from the Middle West, Mrs. Annie Dickie Olsen in Minnesota, and Mrs. J. J. Hooper in Wisconsin, both Democrats, are among the senatorial aspirants. Senator LaFollette, during the closing days of the campaign, left Wisconsin and went into Minnesota and North Dakota, where he took the stump for Henrik Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor candidate, against Senator Kellogg and for Frazier.

Illinois, without a senatorial contest, has witnessed congressional battles of considerable intensity in some districts, with Democrats hoping to recapture outposts lost in the Harding landslide of 1920, and making a strenuous effort to upset the G. O. P. in Republican strongholds. Chief among the issues in Illinois is the legislative campaign, with Governor Small and Mayor Thompson of Chicago as leaders of their faction of the Republican party, urging support of candidates, irrespective of party, who will go along with the Small-Thompson program next winter and spring.

Illinois votes on a $55,000,000 bond issue for soldiers' bonus and a referendum on beer and wine sentiment.

was just the physiological play with which to eliminate Lafayette from the running of the Eastern title.

"Neal is a wonder-coach, and no mistake about it. He has had his knickers, who have found fault with his work at W. & J. in spite of his record of no defeats, but this latest coup should silence them forever and ever. Greasy has demonstrated his greatness time after time by winning the games he was expected to lose. There is no coach in the country who can tune up a team better for an under-dog fight."

"W. & J.'s triumph over the powerful Lafayette team will go down in history as one of the outstanding feats of the 1932 season, but, blase observer that we are, we refuse to regard it as an upset. No, sir; not with Neale on the engineering end. For, as we have said, he has accomplished so many things up to this point that anything he may do in the future must be rather expected. The tougher they come, the better Greasy likes 'em and we refuse to run the risk of missing any headbeats by being further astonished by this sensational dope-spilling. Rather, we'll count on him to come through as a rule—and we know we won't be disappointed often."

Speaking of the Pitt-Geneva game, he says:

"Such a one-sided score in this battle was no more looked for than was Tech's close shave with Allegheny. Pitt was figured to beat the Covenanters without particularly extending itself, but nothing like the steam roller attack that was unleashed was anticipated. The Panthers used numerous substitutes and two of their best players, Sack, guard, and Colonna, fullback, did not get into the game at all, yet there never was a letdown in the power shown. Nine touchdowns and eight try for point goals accounted for the largest total Pitt has registered in years and the manner in which some of the substitutes performed demonstrated that there really is little difference in the caliber of the regulars and the reserves. In fact, it raises the question of whether Coach Warner has been able to pick the best combination from the supply of material at his disposal. Pitt will get a chance to show how lasting its punch is next Saturday, when Penn is encountered at Philadelphia. The Quakers always point for Pitt. They never have beaten the Panthers and are anxious to turn the trick. Their defeat by Alabama last Saturday will make the going all the harder for the locals for Penn will be in a fighting mood, anxious to atone for its only setback of the campaign thus far."
